Jennifer Landis is a self taught artist working with acrylics on canvas, using a variety of methods from brush and palette knife to fluid acrylic techniques to mixed media applications. She sees her abstract artwork as a study in “composed chaos,” inspired by land, water, and sky as well as metallic minerals; nature’s own color palette. She is a nature lover, holding the belief that there is no better inspiration for art than the simple beauty of the world around us which is frequently overlooked in this fast paced world.

Jennifer strives to capture this beauty in abstract form through natural color palettes both neutral and with pops of color. Her artwork has a flow that is often described as “relaxing” or “calming” to the senses. Her hope is that her artwork conveys a sense of wonder and inspiration to others
