I create vibrant and playful art. My creative journey is as much spontaneous and playful, as it is meditative and introspective.

I grew up in India in a family of engineers and educators. Art has been the one constant in my life, even while I built my career in electrical engineering. My life is now a balance of being an artist, an engineer, a mother, an educator and a human being. I'm based in Austin, TX.

Maybe my art is able to contribute to your journey in some special way. I'm here to help you find a piece of art that you can connect with.

The main message in my art is one of building a supportive community. Hopefully when you look at my art you see that I can't create art alone, that it's made possible with support from you, my friends and family. I hope that the vibrant colors in my art inspire you to be positive, to collaborate, to nurture and support.
