Another whole world opened up to me 16 years ago when I moved from Minnesota to Austin, Texas. I started taking watercolor classes from a watercolor artist, Clara Newby. As a keen observer of nature and a horticulturist by training, I naturally gravitated towards plants, flowers, trees, water and sky. I enjoy the beauty and serenity of nature and the world around me. My painting started out as therapy for me and has taken me through the highs and lows that life presents to us all.

I have taken classes with instructors at Laguna Gloria (Contemporary Austin) and Waterloo Watercolor Group (of which I am a member). A recent class with Gerald Brommer, a famous watercolorist and collage artist taught me watercolor collage.

The Visual Voice I am creating in my paintings moves me in many directions and all emanate from the longings of my soul.
